

22 modern living room trends for 2023 – a preview of next year's biggest colors, materials and moods

Dark walls, colored marble and a metal we've not seen in design for a while, living room trends for 2023 are an exciting glimpse into the future of design

BY RODDY CLARKE
PUBLISHED 7 DAYS AGO

CONTRIBUTIONS FROM
RORY ROBERTSON

When it comes to modern living room trends, what we love most is that unlike perhaps kitchen or bathroom trends which may take a whole remodel to recreate in your home, living room trends can be brought into your space in an instant. A new statement piece of furniture, a new selection of cushions, some new lighting could be all it takes to give your room an on-trend update for the new year.

And there are so many gorgeous looks coming through for 2023 – new palettes, new textures, new ideas for what makes a house a home. So to decode the latest interior design trends we've asked the experts for their insight, offering plenty of inspiration for your own decor.

'A lot has been changing in design this year generally, and the way this is filtering into living room for next year is really exciting,' says Livingetc's editor Pip Rich. 'Smartness coupled with informality is a really enticing vibe, leading to rooms you feel you can curl up in, but feel nice while doing so.'

5. BESPOKE DECORATIVE TV CABINETS

(Image credit: Hutley and Humm)

Hiding a living room TV is often a challenge, but designers are coming up with innovative solutions to create decorative and functional alternatives. Interior designer Melissa Hutley, one half of Hutley & Humm, states that more and more requests are coming in as we see each room as a multifunctional space.

"We recently created a cabinet with gilt bamboo framed prints (as pictured), and it was easy to forget it had another function!" she explains.